

His main research interest is in the study of platelet activation and inhibition in atherothrombosis. His research has characterized the human pharmacology of aspirin as an inhibitor of platelet cyclooxygenase activity and provided the basis for the development of low-dose aspirin as an antithrombotic agent.

INFORMATIONS

Carlo Patrono, MD, is Professor and Chair of the Department of Pharmacology at the Catholic University

Dr. Patrono trained as a postdoctoral fellow in New York with the late Solomon Berson and Nobel Laureate

His main research interest is in the study of platelet activation and inhibition in atherothrombosis. His re

He is the Chairman of the Task Force on Antiplatelet Agents of the European Society of Cardiology and

Dr. Patrono has published over 180 original research articles and 100 book chapters. He has received th